"Our Theme is Jesus Christ"

Ogden $100,000 Endows Chair

The Anna W. Ogden Chair of Philosophy was established with the gift of $100,000 from the trust bearing the name of the wife of Walter Ogden, one-time Spokane mortgage financier.

The income from the endowment monies will be used to support the Chair of Philosophy.

"This is surely a significant and lasting contribution to the College and at the same time it will serve as an eloquent and appropriate memorial to Anna W. Ogden," said Dr. Lindaman in announcing the receipt of the endowment.

Dr. Lawrence E. Yates, Chairman of the Whitworth Philosophy Department, said, "Financial support of this magnitude assures that philosophy will continue to be a vital part of the educational opportunities offered by a liberal arts college."

Sears-Roebuck Foundation Renews Grant

The Sears-Roebuck Foundation has renewed their unrestricted and library grants to Whitworth with gifts totaling $2300.

As a private college, Whitworth shares in the $1,500,000 distributed by the Foundation yearly.

Mr. A. E. Vaughn, Manager of the Spokane Sears retail store made the presentation.

The unrestricted funds of $1,500 will go into the general funds of the College. The library grant monies will be used to supplement the normal book acquisition budget.

Gray, Biology, Selected a Top Educator in '70

Mrs. Nicolyn J. Gray, Associate Professor of Biology was selected to appear in the 1970 edition of "Outstanding Educators of America."

The volume is an annual publication set up to recognize those educators who have distinguished themselves by exceptional service, achievements and leadership in education.

Nominations for this award are made by the Presidents, Deans, Superintendents and other heads of schools and colleges.

Mrs. Gray has taught at Whitworth during two periods, 1944-48 and from 1956 to the present time.

She has received several research grants, including one from the National Institute of Health (1962-63).

Registration days are hectic! The "line" brings you past this point where student "ID's" are issued. For the Fall '70 term Whitworth registered 304 frosh, 212 sophomores, 222 juniors, 223 seniors, and 54 graduate students. This included full and part-time, men and women.

Dean Winter "Positions" Community --

"This is a very exciting year at Whitworth. For many of us the potential of our Christian theme is being realized anew. Rather than limiting or restricting our college, we see our theme as a great catalyst for a more relevant and liberal education.

"But let me explain. Higher education in this country began as Christian denominations sought to provide young people with an education grounded in the Christian faith. But as universities became dependent upon public support the great principle of the separation of church and state came to be expressed as 'secular education', a detached, neutral, objective type of education which minimized not only the place of religion but even the importance of morality and values. The present generation of college students has rejected such an education as irrelevant. For these students the classroom is artificial and unreal to the extent that it cannot tolerate the examination and debate of meaning and value and religion.

"Of course there are many Christian colleges which provide an alternative to public universities. Yet they frequently miss the great potential within Christianity. Some require of all faculty and students a rather narrow Christian position and allegiance, which tends to put Christianity in a box and discourages questions and controversy. In other words, they define Christianity so neatly that the excitement of discovery, the great motivation of struggling with the development of faith and belief is lost in the process. They achieve doctrinal orthodoxy at the expense of the dynamic of a community discovering the meaning of Jesus Christ for themselves.

"This is the meaning of our theme. The required chapel program and course in biblical literature do not make Whitworth Christian. We form a community that is seeking to discover the significance of Jesus Christ, and this takes as many forms as there are members of our community, for Christian commitment is a personal experience. The college expects its students to consider carefully the meaning of Jesus Christ but it avoids exerting pressure upon students to commit themselves to particular Christian positions. Our faculty members are united not because we are all Presbyterian or even because we are all 'orthodox.' We have Pentecostals, Episcopalians, members of the 'underground church', conservatives and liberals. Of far greater importance, our faculty is united in the belief that Jesus Christ can change people's lives. We are enthusiastic about the potential of a Christian experience in the development of young men and women.

"The 'new colleges' springing up across the nation are distinctive because of themes which provide community for their students and faculty. Themes do not define the content of instruction; they provide perspective and common goals. We at Whitworth are excited and proud of our theme which expresses a tradition of strong, attractive Christian faith coupled with an equally strong respect for the integrity and freedom of all members of our community. We believe there is no college or university in the country with greater potential for providing truly liberal education and for meeting the needs of college students than Whitworth College. And in large part this is because of our theme — and source of power — Jesus Christ."

Five Trustees Join Board

Five new Whitworth Trustees were named by Chairman Albert Arend at the meeting held on Campus, October 15 and 16.

Three are laymen (two businessmen and a college dean), two are Presbyterian clergymen. Four reside in Washington, one in Oregon.

George Clemens Flanagan, Medford, Oregon, retired General Manager of the Western Oregon region, Boise Cascade Corporation, was elected to the Board during the Spring '70 meeting. Mr. Flanagan is an elder in the Medford Presbyterian Church.

He is Vice Chairman of the Board of San Francisco Theological Seminary, and has been a Trustee of Willamette University for 20 years.

G. Loren Jones is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Wenatchee, Wn. Mr. Jones is a graduate of Sterling College and Pittsburgh Seminary. He serves on General Assembly and Synod committees on Ministerial Relations and is a member of General Council of Synod.

He has served in churches in Pennsylvania, New York and Montana before going to Wenatchee.

Richard P. Langford is pastor of the University Presbyterian Church, Seattle, having previously served as Christian Ed minister at First Presby, Hollywood. Mr. Langford is a Trustee of San Francisco Theological Seminary, and has been active in Young Life work for over 12 years.

Jack Edward Orr is Dean and Professor, College of Pharmacy, University of Washington, Seattle. Dean Orr is an elder in the Wedgewood Presbyterian Church, Seattle and serves on a number of local and Synod church committees.

He is a graduate of Purdue University and received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin. Before coming to the U of Washington, Dr. Orr taught at Ohio State, U of Utah, U of Montana. He presently serves as State Chemist for Washington.

Wendell J. Satre is Executive Vice President of the Washington Water Power Company, Spokane. Mr. Satre is a graduate of the U of Idaho, with a B.S. in Electrical Engineering. He joined WWP in 1939 and has been there since, except for active U.S. Naval Reserve duty from 1944 to 1946.

Rap with Lindaman

Charles Malik, distinguished Professor of Philosophy at the American University, Beirut, Lebanon, former president of the United Nations General Assembly, addressed a group of educators earlier this year using the title "Education in Upheaval: The Christian's Responsibility". In part, he said:

"The soul of the learned these days is quite empty — empty to the bare bones. The students will rebel, not knowing why they are rebelling or what they are rebelling against, although they think they do. For they have come to the great banquet of being, seeking food and fullness, and are turned away empty."

It is an awesome thing to be a servant at what Malik calls "the great banquet of being". Those of us who are dedicating our lives and careers to the education of the now generation, do not want to serve up mere facts. Life consists of so much more than that.

A freshman comes to the campus with great expectations and great doubts. At home and in high school he had a certain measure of self identity. He knew who he was — through his family, his childhood friends, and a familiar habitat. The decisions he made were always subject to ratification. But when he arrives on campus all that is changed! He is no longer Mr. So and So's eldest son. He no longer sees himself reflected through the eyes of his lifelong friends and neighbors. His decisions are binding. All this means that he must reestablish — and this time for good — his personal identity. The question "Who am I?", looms in front of him in a way never before experienced. He is now, more than at any other time in his life, open to new leadings.

Science tells him he is a combination of atoms. Biology points out that he is a grouping of cells. Sociology says he is being subjected to the whims of an alternating society. Psychology points out that he is an ambivalent character. And so the facts pile up in his head. Where does he hear the Truth?

A campus is a microcosm of the world. It is a place where students experiment with life. It is a "time between" apron strings and the realities of the world of discovery, war and commerce. It is a time of decision making about ultimate things.

For man TO BE means TO BE WITH other human beings. His existence is always coexistence. Fulfillment is not attained unless he has shared himself with other beings.

What would happen if he were to live with, and share his life with, day in and day out, professors who believed that Jesus Christ could change people's lives? At a college where science, the humanities and the arts come together and surpass the best of the past. A college where these accumulations of man's creative endeavors are irradiated with Christian insights. A place where persons are seeking, but feeling Empowered. Open, but not afraid of what can be. Hopeful because of a belief in a Promise. Not pious but tolerant. Trusting each other and not fearful of the consequences. Committed but not enticed. A place where fantastic human growth possibilities exist because coming together are persons free to ask the fundamental questions and persons who are seeking answers to them, both in theory and in act. A place where no one is ashamed to admit that Christ is at work.

It is my belief that Whitworth College is adding the Needed Dimension of Christ to "the great banquet of being."

Trustees Set Charles Koehler Scholarship

A one-half tuition scholarship has been established as the Charles F. Koehler Scholarship by action of the College Trustees.

It is to be awarded to a returning student actively engaged in the work of Christ's Kingdom, and who shows promise of a strong contribution in that area after graduation.

Lisbon: da Torre de Belem

January Term Includes Spain-Portugal Trip

"An academic change of pace ... a different approach to learning and a variety of areas of study not available in the regular terms," so reads the January Term catalog.

Although, to some, the 26-day tour of Spain and Portugal may appear the most romantic ... the "stay-at-homes" are not denied exciting experiences, as well.

Professors Russ Larson, Ron Turner and Evelyn Smith will be leading the overseas junket ... offering art, language and religion courses for credit.

"At home," so to speak, students will ... serve internships off-campus in museum, symphony, theatre and educational TV administration ... study environmental problems traveling with health and sanitation officials ... investigate management of personal financial affairs ... the art film ... classics in Christian literature ... protest movements in American history ... serve internship with newspapers, radio and TV stations, press association, ad agency, public relations firm ... consider contemporary music in the contemporary church ... develop a practicum in physical education and recreation for the mentally retarded ... investigate problems of developing nations ... produce religious drama (see story elsewhere this issue on the tour of this group of players) ... and many more!

"... the January Term allows you maximum flexibility in your college experiences in areas where you feel the greatest need" ... the catalog continues. And it truly does!

16 Countries; 27 States Send Students

Washington, with 470, and California, with 206, are the two states contributing the larger numbers of Whitworth undergraduates.

Other states, with number of students in parentheses, are: Montana (41), Hawaii (39), Idaho (37), Oregon (22), Colorado (20), Alaska (9), Minnesota (7), Arizona, Illinois, New Jersey, Texas (4 each), New York, North Carolina (3 each), Kansas, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma, North Dakota, Wyoming (2 each), and with 1 each: Iowa, Missouri, Utah, Maryland, Wisconsin.

The largest "foreign" contributor is Canada, with 9. Countries sending 2 students each are: Afghanistan, Brazil, Ethiopia, Japan, Switzerland. One student is attending from Hong Kong, India, Israel, Malaysia, Mexico, Panama, Spain, Thailand, Kenya, and Italy.

Graduate School Gains Applicants

Beginning with Fall '69 and continuing through the summer of '70, approximately 140 applied for acceptance in the Whitworth graduate study program, according to Dr. Alvin Quall, Director.

Fifty-four graduate students are in the program during the Fall semester. Fifteen are enrolled for the school principal's internship program.

$50,000 "Wildbucks" Faculty, Staff Goal

The "50,000 Bucks Campaign" got underway, May 28, 1970. Dr. Jasper H. Johnson was selected as chairman of the drive to round up 50,000 "wild bucks." All faculty and staff were asked to be on the look-out for these "stray bucks" that could be "corralled," operating on the "dollar-saved-dollar-earned" basis.

On October 30th the total had reached $43,249.95. The recruitment of new students resulted in the larger share of these funds.

Other means were: — faculty members accepting larger class loads; self-imposed budget cuts, along with interesting savings such as a professor mixing his own clay ... rather than purchasing it mixed; and volunteer painting of student lounges, rather than hiring it done professionally. A substantial amount of money came as direct contributions through sacrificial giving.

Less than $7,000 is yet to be raised and Dr. Johnson is confident that this gap will be closed before the end of the term.

David L. Jones, College Trustee, Bainbridge Island, Wn., and Mrs. Nicolín P. Gray, Assistant Professor of Biology outside the campus aluminum glass greenhouse which Mr. and Mrs. Jones gave to the College. It houses tropical, desert and southern hemisphere plants and frees the smaller greenhouse attached to the Biology Lab for experimental purposes.

Wash. Private Colleges Gain in New Laws

During the 1970 Legislature the Washington Friends of Higher Education supported four pieces of legislation which were written into Washington State law; the establishment of a Student Financial Aid bill, with an initial funding of $600,000; the formation of a Council and a Commission on Higher Education to give State planning and coordination to higher education; House Concurrent Resolution No. 5, which provided for a Study of Private Higher Education; and the formation of a Joint Legislative Committee on Higher Education which gives permanence to a legislative standing committee working in the area of the challenges facing higher education.

Washington Friends of Higher Education was formed in 1968 to give private higher education a united front in working with public bodies established to plan and improve higher education, and in seeking legislation that would benefit private higher education as well as support programs that would give coordination to all of higher education in the State.

The Study of Private Higher Education was completed during the summer and has been presented to and accepted by the Council on Higher Education.

Two important recommendations contained in the Study and accepted by the Council were: a grant of at least $100 per student to attend a private college; and direct aid to programs in private colleges which are in the public need, such as schools of nursing.

The Council will now pass these recommendations on to the Legislature which meets in January, 1971. The Washington Friends of Higher Education will follow legislative developments very carefully and keep member colleges informed.

Whitworth College will, in turn, inform its many friends so they can communicate directly with local Representatives and Senators about legislation relating to the future of private colleges.

Hadrian VII Opens Campus Drama Season

The initial offering of the Whitworth Drama Department, "Hadrian the Seventh" was greeted with acclaim by large audiences on November 19-21.

Directed by Professor Al Gunderson, the student cast did a remarkably well-balanced job with a difficult story. David Johnstone in the lead role, as Fredrick William Rolfe, a penniless writer who dreams he becomes the Pope, continued his series of top performances.

The play, written by Peter Luke, received excellent reviews during long runs in New York and London over the past few years.

Oliver

Oliver Named Administrator Minority Affairs

Whitworth is impelled both by its spiritual perspectives and by its concern for the nation to work toward a solution of problems related to the rights and opportunities of minority peoples.

In recent years there has been a considered attempt to add to both student body and staff persons of diverse racial and socioeconomic backgrounds. On the Campus the special issues have been faced squarely.

To expedite the effort, Walter Oliver has been appointed as Administrator in Minority Affairs. As friend and counselor to students, he will be in a position to interpret the administrative position to them.

As an administrator, he will have a significant role in making official College decisions, helping to make sure that the rights and interests of minority persons are understood and honored.

As an admissions officer he will actively engage in describing Whitworth to a greater diversity of publics, and he will recruit students interested in and qualified for a Whitworth collegiate experience.

Mr. Oliver is a 1967 Whitworth graduate in Psychology.

Drama, Band Plan State Tours in '71

The 1970 January Term Drama tour, featuring the morality play, "Everyman," was such a resounding success — academically as well as with audiences, — we're "hitting the road" again in January, 1971.

Mr. Al Gunderson will direct the modern morality play, "Let Man Live," by Par Lagerkvist. Homer Townsend will serve as tour manager.

The players will be on the road January 25 through February 3, 1971, in Washington.

In February the College Band will tour on the weekend, February 25-27, in Washington. Dr. Donald DeuPree, Music Department Chairman and Director, will head the touring musicians. Ed L. Neltner will manage the tour.

Future presentations of Whitworth drama will include the modern morality play, "Let Man Live," to "hit the road" throughout the State of Washington during January.

Scheduled for campus presentation is Shakespeare's "The Tempest," on March 25-27.

Concert Series '70 Offerings Promise Variety

Jerome Hines, brilliant Metropolitan Opera bass, gave the '70-'71 Concert Series a most exhilarating beginning in October. His performance, greeted with a standing ovation, set the pace for the wide range of programs arranged for by the College Concert Series Committee, under the chairmanship of Al Gunderson.

Johnson and Aoki

On Saturday, January 30th, Jim Johnson and Harry Aoki combine talents to present a program which reflects "the moods of man." These two artists have produced a program which represents a new dimension in today's "kaleidoscopic world of folk music."

St-Denis

Claude St-Denis, Canada's leading mime, makes his presentation in the universal language of the silent gesture, the speechless expression on Friday, March 5th.

Tucson Arizona Boys Chorus

The Series is completed on Saturday, April 24th, when the famous Tucson Arizona Boys Chorus brings their classics, carols, folk songs, westerns.

Tickets for the three events may be secured from the Office of Public Relations on Campus.

Rusk, Reid, Turner, Morley

Morley and Crew Log Miles on New Student Quests

Whitworth College Admissions Staff is extremely involved in an effort to secure a full freshman class for the Fall of 1971. College conferences in high schools, open houses, church visits, interviews in private homes, are all important in communicating the opportunities of Whitworth College.

The staff includes David A. Morley, Director of Admissions; Bill Rusk, Susan Reid and Dave Turner as Admissions Counselors.

Staff travel is scheduled throughout the western states, with specific emphasis on key areas — Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Denver.

New in the 50-week schedule is a week of contact in each of the following areas: Alaska, Northern California, Minneapolis-St. Paul and Chicago. Publications, reflecting the excitement in the Whitworth community, to be used in talking with prospective students are being produced at this time. Early results from the total program seem to indicate increased interest in the College program.

Special events are planned to bring more prospective students to the Campus. For example, a music day for high school students, a drama workshop, an editor clinic are on the calendar.

Surby moved that ball . . . an average of 85 yards per game! That's the new 2000-seat section of the Pine-Bowl, with press boxes, with comfortably-seated fans. Current response to the "Pine Bowl 2000" fund-raising effort totals nearly $16,000. Have you purchased your lifetime seats? Write Perry Watkins, Whitworth College, Spokane, Wn. 99218. He'll tell you how to participate.

Instructional television

"Abstract Reasoning"—Try That on Your TV Sometime

A Whitworth Philosophy professor did it! To prove a point in abstract reasoning, the teacher used trick photography with the TV camera.

Usually, however, the two TV cameras in the Whitworth Audio Visual Center are put to more "concrete" use.

Recently the Religion department used it to tape a drama; guest lecturers are taped for future reference; athletic workouts are taped for review by the players; science experiments can be shown in closeup; the music conductor is able to criticize his own technique; student teachers can see themselves as the students do . . . the uses of Instructional Television are unlimited (except by the amount of equipment we own.)

Whitworth got its first TV camera, recorder and monitor in 1967; and a completely portable "Rover" unit in 1968. The two set-ups have been taxed to full capacity ever since. And each use prompts another new idea for use.

It's another of the exciting new approaches to education on the Campus!
